BLACK AND GOLD

I do have many a friend and many a lover so there a space left write on the cover!

Ruth Johnston

Elizabeth had been a pleasure to be in home room with you. I wish you much success and happiness

Virginia Burton

Dear Elizabeth:

Since the depression is on I will write in the front yard of the county farms.

Have enjoyed knowing you lots.

Dot Johnson, Jr.

Depression

Four years ago old man Depression
Knocked loudly at our door,
Then we were buying like millionaires—
When he leaves us, we'll all be poor.

"We can end this depression,"
Cry G. O. P.s and Democrats;
We are offered budget balancers
And these strange Technocrats.

But alas, alack, all remedies fail,
Old man depression still remains;
He holds us in his terrible grip
And snatches all our gains.

To remember these years in the future
As queer as it may seem,
With hopes of good times soon to come,
We use "Depression" as our theme.

DEDICATION

During these lean years in which material values have depreciated, we have seen the worth of real ones. When a teacher can convey the fundamentals of life through extra-curricular activities as well as in class rooms, when she is a "booster" of all school undertakings, when she corrects wrong as well as punishes it, then she is loved by every one who comes in contact with her, and her true value is recognized. Realizing that she has these qualities, we, the January and June graduating classes, have chosen to dedicate our senior issue of this magazine to Miss Donnye Worley, whom we consider one of the school's "best values."

The Weavers

A brief four years of happiness
Are swept away by fleeting time,
As we stand on the threshold of a new day,
We cherish thoughts sublime.

Weavers are we all, whate'er our task,
Fate is our shuttle—we twist the thread;
God watches by the moving loom,
And bids us: "Be Thou Unafraid."

Triumphant gain and bitter loss,
Beautiful friendships—a moments strife,
Are threads of gold that weave themselves
Into the pattern of our life.

Alas, today those threads are cut,
We have broken the chain of years,
Yet lingering memory guides us on
And reminiscence brings the tears.

Tears—pearls wrought by sorrow's hand
Dewdrops on the morning rose;
Yet through their mist before us,
Our Alma Mater's beacon glows.

And some fair day we'll gather the threads,
That now are asunder torn,
And bind them in a shining band
Around the Master's Throne.

Sara Ingram

HISTORY OF JANUARY CLASS, 1933

Paul Foltz

As the gladiators passed before the throne of Caesar, they cried aloud in buoyant hope, "We, who are about to die, salute thee". But today we, the January class of 1933, cry aloud, "We, who are beginning to live, salute thee".

And then the typed work beginning "As someone spoke of us", etc.—"You are now students of Richard J. Reynolds High School", a somewhat scattered applause came from the somewhat scattered audience and we, the class of January 1933, had begun that career that has led us through four years of joy and sorrow, defeat and success, and all the other emotion that fill those four years of mental strain. Like all freshmen, we were green. Not just plain green, but a brilliant, glaring green. However, by carefully avoiding sophomores we managed to escape the fate that we had anticipated. During the year, Gladys Shore won first place in the North Carolina Safety contest and four of our number assumed the title of "freshman debater".

The "dark ages" of high school days—Sophomore year, we entered, not yet knowing just what it was all about, and left it wondering if we knew more than we did on entering. Having acquired a rudimentary knowledge of Algebra, we were raring to go at Geometry. However we soon found that Geometry was more than the shortest distance between two points. While in the clutches of this study we lost the little that we did know about Algebra and were often tempted to believe that we had lost our minds. Frances Tillett won recognition by starring in the Graham Art Contest. It was during this year that the "Powers that be" decreed that examinations should be dicontinued. We approached the end of the year quite elated at this lifting of the burden—only to find the old examinations there in the form of "tests".

The Junior year may be truly called the "awakening", for almost invariably it is at this stage that the student begins to show signs of life. We, like our predecessors, awoke to the fact that we still had two years of high school and that there were other things to do besides study Algebra and Citizenship. We immediately began to take part in extra-curricular activities.

Having left the stage of life known as adolescence behind and having more or less developed personalities of our own, we branched into all the many fields of High School activities, some for sports, some for dramatics, some for Journalism, and some decided suddenly that certain members of the opposite sex had a strange fascination for them. To start the year off right we elected Jimmy Coan president of the Junior Class.

The Junior Class produced several exceptionally good actors. John Johnson starred in the play "Mansions". Tyler Port sat down in a wheel chair for forty five minutes to become quite popular as the star of "Nocturne", and John Shultz already a popular actor, donned the villian's robes to make the play "Streets of New York" a howling success.

George Burke won recognition for both himself and Reynolds High at the Greensboro music contest by taking several first and second prizes in instrumental music, and Foster Dowdy became the staff artist for the Pine Whispers.

It was during this Junior year that the class attempted something entirely new. We broke the age old custom of a Junior Senior reception and gave a dance for the seniors. Through the efforts of Bobby Heckard and Jimmy Coan the dance proved a success. We left the Junior year realizing that at last we had found our place in high school life. We were somewhat skeptical about the much famed senior privileges, not being quite sure whether they were a joke or a much cherished reality, but there were other things that we had to think about, foremost among them being American Problems, and so with both the joy of anticipation and the skepticism of doubters we took the fatal leap and became—Seniors.

Clubs, plays, football, dates, parties,

CLASS OF JANUARY, 1933

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

John Shultz

As We, the class of January, 1933, are graduating in the midst of these lean years of depression we have very little at our disposal to will to the oncoming sufferers. However, it is with great pride that we are able to give these few articles—because it is not the gift that counts but the spirit in which it is given.

Article I

Being honest and truthful members of this great student body we will not attempt to deceive the Juniors, as we were deceived, by leaving them those things known as Senior Privileges which have never existed .

Article II

To Robert Meredith Helm, Jr., Oscar Crump Harris, Jr. leaves his firm foundations, number 11's, so that when Robert runs for President he will not have to have a platform on which to stand.

Article III

To N. T. Sandefur, John Johnson wills his inimitable four W's—Winning Ways With Women.

Article IV

To Margie Tuttle, Reid Smith wills his popularity—not that she needs it, but so that with it she will be as popular with the girls as she now is with the boys.

Article V

To Mary Julia Crawley, Mozelle Snyder leaves her interest in that great blonde Cross Country runner, Sid Kinney.

Article VI

To the faculty we leave those members known as "FLUNKEES", with sincere hopes that the teachers will become so disgusted with their honest efforts to pass that they will rid themselves of these members by the one and only method, "graduation".

Article VII

As administrator of our humble estate we hereby appoint the one person who

PROPHECY

Jett Foster

Tonight's opening of the John Shultz Memorial Auditorium, will present two well known Grand Opera singers, El Senors Bobby Heckard and Ralph Hardee. Both singers have studied extensively abroad and are stars of the Metropolitan Opera House in both New York and Chicago. They are now conducting a travel tour of the states, after starring in such Operas as "Carmen" and "Tannhauser."

Some of the notables present at the openings will be: Cecil Page, Professor of Science at Harvard, Donald Trivett, Professor of Modern Language at Yale, and Doctor Helm Carroll, Professor of Cosmetics at Wellesely.

Other Ph. D's to attend are: Henry Wimbish, Howell Bagby, John Shultz, and O. C. Harris.

Friends of the John Johnson family will be interested to know that their son, John Jr., fell this morning. He hit the soft pedal of the piano and thus was not injured enough to cause alarm.

John Johnson, Jr. is a five year old youngster of extraordinary intelligence. He was asked by one of his father's friends whether he was Democrat or Republican. He immediately informed the gentleman that he was neither one by answering, "I'm a Methodist."

Mrs. Hope Best Perryman, who is well known as a leader among classes, will leave for Washington where she will take the seat of a Senatoress January 25, 1950.

Mrs. Perryman will be accompanied by her husband, Olin Perryman, who will incidentally act as her private secretary.

Mr. Edward Hayes, an employee of the Hanes Hosiery Mill, won the annual story-telling contest held today in the Heilig Memorial Auditorium.

Experts claim that Mr. Hayes' ability as a story-teller is far above that of Uncle Remus. When asked why they had

Reverie

Looking down life's byways
We stand.
What will these roads—now so smooth—
Be in the years to come?
Will they bring success—
Shining like a flashing meteor
Only to fall away and
Be forgotten by this
Hurrying race of men?
For some, yes.
Or for others—
Happiness.
Bring like a tiny star
On the darkest night,
Always there—always shining
Through eternity.
And for those who would
Not be warned of that Dangerous road—
Failure!
Black, ugly failure
Hovering always near
Like an ominous dark cloud.
For few—
Riches.
Sparkling like a crystal clear diamond
Beautiful but hard and cold.
For all—
Death!
Snuffing out life
Like a gentle zephyrs
Snuffs out the wavering flame
Of a once bright candle.
So—
Which will be your lot?

HISTORY OF JUNE CLASS, 1933

Lamar Welfare

A brisk autumn wind whipped the entrance to the Reynolds Memorial Auditorium. The large swinging chandeliers cast weird shadows about the massive columns. The setting was perfect for our frame of mind. Terror—fear of the unknown could be found on the faces of 385 students as they quietly slipped into the Auditorium, walked with quaking steps onto the stage and sat down. An hour later we were students of R. J. R. High School, but that meant nothing. What was next? Where to go? What to do? How to do it? And Why?—— That experience seems somewhat queer to us now, but glancing back over those days, we recall experiences that have been amusing, peculiar and sometimes tragic. Those experiences linked together form the history of the June class of 1933.

As freshmen it was inevitable that some of us should throughly understand Algebra and Civics, and quite inevitable that some of us should not. Some of us fell by the way, members of our class in spirit if not on schedule cards. Others braved the animal heads, Algebra, Civics, the lunch line and Mr. Joyner's office, and finally, looking on Freshman report cards for the last time, considered themselves Sophomores.

"Wise Fool"

"Poor little fellow, he needs sleep."

"No, I think he sleeps too much—maybe it's his heart—maybe he works too hard."

Those and hundreds of similar remarks were passed about us as Sophomores. The trouble wasn't heart trouble, nor was it too much work. In fact we hadn't come to high school to work. The trouble was that we had given it up for a "bum job". Algebra was bad enough—but Geometry—that was rank foolishness. Mr. Joyner gave up as hopeless the task of convincing us that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points. The Latin teacher gave up "amo, amas, amat" and tried "Ego amo te." Eventually we found that it meant "I love you", then, we did know that something was wrong. We divided our time between the freshmen workouts and wondering what the teacher was talking about.

The Awakening

In the fall of 1931 we returned to school to find that we were Juniors. Not that it meant so much to us, but we had heard that we were supposed to accomplish something. We found that our school was looking to us for leadership, and we answered with leaders. We decided that freshmen were beneath our notice, and that it didn't quite become our dignity to flunk studies and to spend half our time in the office—so we started moving. We shook off those shackles of bashfulness and lack of confidence that had retarded us as freshmen and sophomores and spread our wings and flew. We sent boys to the football squad; we sent J. C. Wiggins and Tyler Port to the Debating team. Our members entered dramatics and took part in student government. Some chose publication work, but wherever we went, we excelled. We threw off the old ways and began making history. At the close of that year we looked forward to a Senior year full of hard but enjoyable work.

Grand Finale

An all too short three months vacation and we were back—seniors. There was no hesitating, no wondering. We knew what was to be done and started doing it. Perhaps American History and Problems have slowed us down a bit; perhaps Senior English has had its pitfalls for our scholastic record. But now the leaders of R. J. R., we are still filling our posts and finding joy in our work.

With Jack McMichael as the President of the Student body, and Max Snead President of the Senior Class, we are closing four years of High School experience. We sent more members to the debating team. Our members are unexcelled in every line. Tyler Port in declamation; Martha Stoney in publi-

PROPHECY

Jim Hutchins

In the year 1946, the World Olympics were held in Winston-Salem, North Carolina at the John C. Wiggins Athletic Field, (formerly known as Hanes Park), in the Mary Starr Martin Memorial Stadium.

This stadium is known as the largest and best in the world. The stadium was constructed by the one and only Tyler Port, a world renowned engineer, assisted by Tom Holland as architect.

I was interested in looking about trying to discover the outstanding members of the June graduating class of 1933.

In finding our places for observation, we stumbled across Prof. J. Red Upchurch, Assistant to Prof. Maxwellus Snead, who was unable to attend on account of court entanglements relating to a double breach of promise suit—Prof. Upchurch was having some difficulty in paying attention, since his mind, as usual, was still wandering to business affairs.

Other notable citizens were spied, consisting of Rear Admiral Dixon Speas of the United States Navy who holds the world's altitude record; Miss Lucille Davis, noted Ziegfield follies star, winning her fame through tap and toe dancing. Professor "Pop" Clarence Stone, the greatest mathematician since Thinhelstein's period who has evolved a new theorem for all geometry problems.

We saw Mr. Snookie Smothers, the World's Champion Peetad Shooter. Mr. Smothers has competed in the last three Olympics and won by shooting with both the left and the right hands. Mr. Smothers started his career on this same field some fourteen years ago, after the Gastonia football game, when his father presented him with a bag of peetads instead of a football.

Next we saw Miss Martha Moores, who was competing in the discus throwing contest. Miss Moores started her career by carrying the burden which, by the way, caused her to be known as the most intellectual girl in the June class of

STATISTICIAN'S REPORT

Max Snead

We, the Graduating Class of June, 1933, in order that future classes may know the characteristics of the people who compose our number, present to the R. J. Reynolds High School, this report of our Statistician.

Athletics, as a hobby, had the largest number of supporters. Among the other pastimes mentioned were, criminal cases, Rudy Vallee songs, sleeping, eating, and one person affirmed that his favorite occupation was working physics problems.

Fords predominated in the automobiles owned by members of the Senior Class, and next in line came Buicks. There were two Cadillacs, one La Salle, one Dodge, and one Locomobile.

"Bill" is the favorite nickname, and among the more unusual ones were Spegett, Skitchy, Duck, Frankenstein, Phelco, Sqush, and Oswald.

The noble name of William has the greatest number of bearers (which accounts for the large number of "Bills") and "Dorothy" seems to have first place among the girls.

Thirty-four people stated that brown is the color of their eyes, and grey came second with nine. One person claimed "cat eyes" and one, pale blue.

Brown hair (light, dusky, and dark) occupied the heads of most of the seniors, but a great many people possessed assorted shades of black and red. One student asserted that her hair was cherry red, and another, mouse colored.

The smallest size shoe recorded was a three, and the possessor of the largest foot (if his statement is to be believed) wears an eleven and one-half.

Eleven o'clock is about the average bed-time for Seniors, and others, range from nine o'clock to twelve. (American Problems is still doing its dirty work.)

"Minnie The Moocher" was the most popular song. Three people reverted to ye good old melodies and stated that they liked "Yankee Doodle," "Sweet Ade-

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF CLASS OF JUNE

Jack McMichael

We, the June Class of Nineteen Hundred and Thirty-three, being possessed with sound minds and bodies and in full possession of an almost superhuman understanding, do hereby publish, make known, and declare to all whom it may concern, this the last will and testament.

Article 1, Section 1:

To our dear Alma Mater we leave our sincere thanks and appreciation for the many opportunities afforded us during these four or more years.

Section 2:

To Mr. Moore, our Principal, and the members of the faculty of our school, we wish to express our most sincere thanks for their wisdom and patience in dealing with us, and the helpful instruction that they have so willingly given.

Section 3:

To the Student Body as a whole, we leave the Honor System. May they carry on the high ideals and principles of the Honor System as we have striven so hard to do in this institution.

Article II, Section I:

To the juniors we leave our many privileges, our unprecedented dignity, and the honor of occupying our front seats in the center of the chapel. We hope that they be ever mindful of the love and admiration which they have won in our hearts.

Section 2:

To the Sophomores, we leave our brotherly advice to be persistent in their pursuit of wisdom, and to keep always the good spirit of good sportsmanship.

Section 3:

To the Freshmen, we leave the sincere request that some day they will grow up and cast aside their childish ways and become real high school students with the dignity we have assumed.

Section 4:

To the class of 1937, we leave our class flower and colors, with the sincere wish that they will always keep and cherish them as we do.

Section 5:

To Miss Nix and Miss Day, we deliver our appreciation for the aid they have given us in the Library work which the American Problems teachers imposed on us.

Section 6:

To Miss Jones we leave the magazine campaign. Heres's hoping she doubles her class record so that she will be able to get a free buggy ride around the Auditorium at sunrise.

Article III, Section 1:

Upon Mary Woodruff, Mary Starr Martin bestows her divine "prettiness" with sincere wishes that she will be as successful in inveigling the opposite sex as Mary Starr has been.

Section 2:

To Randolph Reece, Martha Stoney leaves her ability and long hours in the Staff room with the hopes that he will succeed in getting all articles and reports in on time, so that office hours can extend to 6:00 always.

Section 3:

Bill Hatcher wills to Bunny Hines his "good looks" and hopes there can be an improvement made, since exercise on the track team is supposed to enhance one's youthful appearance.

Section 4:

Ernest Byrd leaves to Howard Morris his ability to jump hurdles.

Section 5:

Jeanette Kelly leaves to Virginia Phelps her plumpness and size, so that Virginia can readily be recognized as a Senior instead of a Freshman.

Section 6:

Tyler Port, because of his interest in graduation of George Blum by 1935, leaves to George one-half of his scholastic ability and always his seat on the "A" row in Miss Mary's English class.

Section 7:

"Snooky" Smothers desires that Hugh Duggins have his football plunging ability in making that last one yard which is always so hard to get.

Section 8:

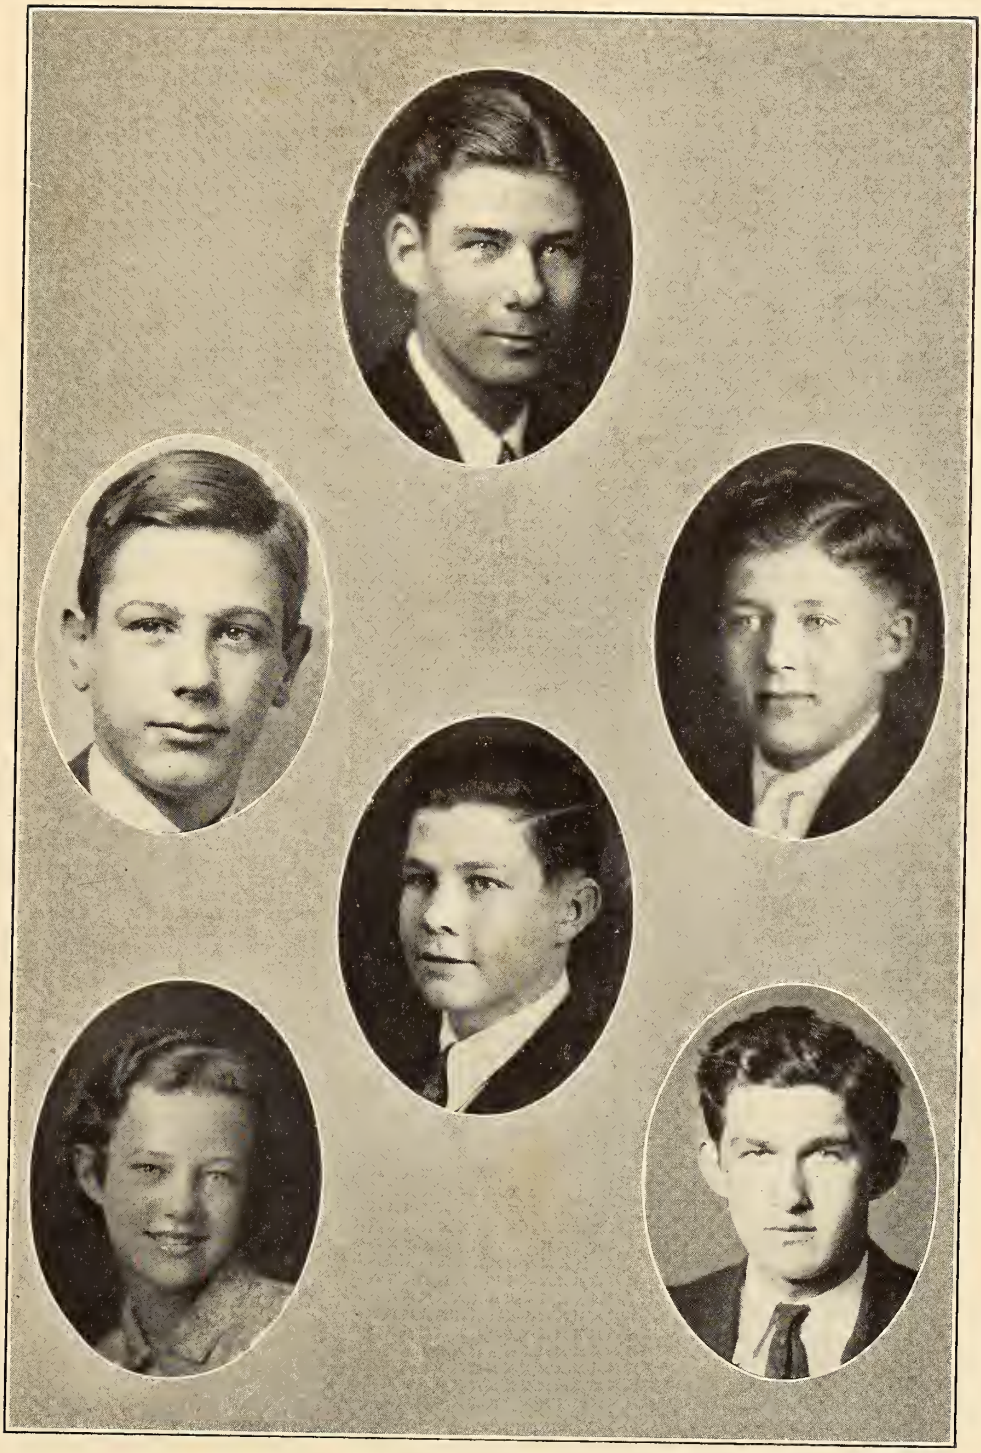

Maxwell Snead wills to Luther Pike all

Members not in the picture: Wayne Allen, George Reece, Henry Pleasants, Ellis Fulk, and David Bouldin.

A new phase of vocational instruction was inaugurated here this year when trade printing students were assigned to various commercial print shops as a part of their regular school work in printing. Approximately twenty-five students participated in this plan and gained additional direct trade training.

The Printers Club was organized in September. Membership in the organization is by invitation. The club printed and sold monogrammed school stationery and jig-saw style puzzles of school scenes.

The two outstanding jobs produced in the shop this year are this Black and Gold and the Anthology of Creative Writing for the English classes of the city schools.

THIS DEPRESSION

"And you gentlemen, will serve as a committee to investigate the depression in the Richard J. Reynolds High School," said President McMichael—so a committee composed of John Carroll Wiggins, Junior—Chairman, James Cofer, and Charles Bagwell, Junior, began a localized study of the problem which has puzzled our leading economists for several years————Two weeks later, President McMichael, at his desk, received the report of the commission before him.

"Well, gentlemen," said the President, "Any report?"

"Yes, Mister President," replied

WIGGINS, JUNIOR
"Sheds light on Depression"

Chairman Wiggins, "our report consists of the following items:

1. A depression exists in the High School.
2. It resembles the depression which exists in the rest of the world today. There's a strong suspicion that it is a branch of the same depression.
3. The depression is very detrimental to the students and faculty.
4. There are probably methods of relieving the depression."

"The report is very unsatisfactory," sighed the President, "Not enough detail."

However, the committee had also prepared a detailed report, and the chief features brought out in the investigation follow:

I. Extent of the depression:
   A. Number of people now walking to school—1,970.
   B. Number of people who would be just as well off walking—23.
   C. Number of people having to do without their daily popsicle—1,993. (total number of students and faculty in High School—1,993.)
   D. Number of requests for loans from one student ton another 9,000,000,000,0 00.
   E. Number of loans actually made .000,000,000.
   F. Last but not least, the number of people in the High School affected by depression, 2,002½ (Miss Hendricks makes up 1½).

II. Statements
   1. Anderson Ashburn—Z.V.X., W. V. U., T. O. N.:

"After a long and careful study of the depression, I find it very regrettable that such conditions exist."

   2. Dr. George Reece—M.L.K., J.I.H.:

"I don't know anything about the depression." (lucky guy)

   3. Clay Williams—C. B. A., G. F. D.:

"I'm going around in circles trying to make ends meet. However, the crisis is only temporary, so don't let it bother you."

   4. Miss Albright—H.O.M.E., W.O.R.K.:

"I think the less said, the better."

   5. Professor John E. C. Kapp (He couldn't remember his degrees):

"I think the incomprehensibility of it is inconfoundable, and I yam going to remedy it." (Hurrah!)

PROFESSOR DAVID WILCOX SPEAKS ON THE DOOJABS

Outstanding because of its literary merit, an address by the eminent Professor David Wilcox, formerly of the Richard J. Reynolds High School, given at a banquet of the Monarchs' Club, is reprinted here in its entirety.

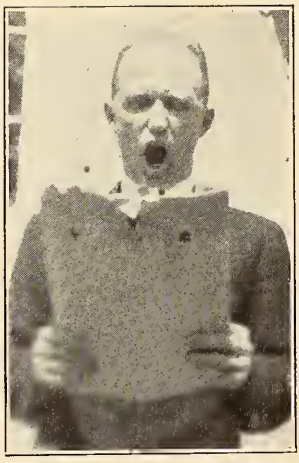

"Gentlemen of the Monarchs' Club, it is my very great privilege and pleasure to speak to you today, on the Doojabs, a race of people who inhabited the wilds of the Salem Creek District, several hundred years before Columbus discovered America. This information was taken from an ancient manuscript, which I discovered on the bank of the creek, while I was aiding Mr. Haltiwanger in a search for his long lost cow. Strangely enough, it was unharmed by the storms of centuries, but this was probably because it was written with juice from the boo-boo berry, on the skin of a yo-yotoppus.

From this document, written in a language which in many respects strangely resembles English, and which I was finally able to translate fully, I learned of the Doojabs, a half savage race of people, who, however, in many respects, closely resembled the students of the Richard J. Reynolds High School of today.

These people lived in houses built high in the trees, to protect themselves from the raids of the savage Halto-Wangus, and made clothing for themselves out of the skin of the aforementioned yo-yotoppus. Their language so closely resembled English, because two hundred years before the landing of Columbus, a daring English adventurer, whose name had been lost to history, Geoffrey Leggette, braved the Atlantic ocean in his small ships, penetrated the jungles of the Piedmont Section of North Carolina, and Discovered the Doojabs, teaching them many English customs.

However, as Leggette stayed on, year after year, with the Doojabs, he forgot much of the English Language and began to use Doojabian words, to take their place. It was he who wrote the manuscript of which I have told you.

The Halto-Wangus was, undoubtedly, the most ferocious animal of the Salem Creek Jungle, but Leggette, who was unusually daring, tells of an incident that proves that this animal was not altogether invincible. He was walking in the jungle one day, accompanied by Ralluph Brimuley, the only one of his sailors who had accompanied him to the Salem Creek district, when suddenly,

PROFESSOR WILCOX
"A Second Columbus"

he found himself face to face with the terrible Halto-Wangus!

"Glub!" he cried, which is the Doojabian word for "help," but Brimuley, who had dropped behind, thought he was just taking a drink of water from the stream. The Halto-Wangus roared and made a savage bite at Leggette, but the invincible explorer dodged it and jumped on the back of the animal's neck. The Halto-Wangus then started running through the bushes in an effort to shake off our hero, but just then Brimuley came on the scene. "Glub," yelled Leggette. And then, "We'll lick this lap dog yet." "Check," shouted Brimuley. "But we can't use force; we must use strategy."

So he broke off a popusiculum, a plant of which the animal was very fond, and handed it to Leggette, who took it, held it six inches in front of the animal's nose, and started driving it around in circles. All day long, in the boiling sun, he sat on the animal's back, and drove it around in circles, until it fell exhausted, and then the two men tickled it to death.

In a great many ways the Doojabs were curious people. They all had red hair, green eyes, and pink eyebrows. Each person had a first and last name, and the most common names were similar to Glubblus Fizzle and Spalukus Malukala.

From the manuscript, we learn that the Dooiabs of the younger generation were indeed very human. In the quaint language of Leggette, (written before he forgot his 13th century English)—

"And when ye teachere askede Johnus Kappolius if he hadde three of ye popusiculi, ande ye other boye tooke one awaye, whatte he woulde have, he repliede, very graciouslie, that he woulde have a hecke of a fighte with ye othere fellowe."

He tells another incident, of a young Doojab, who asked his father if he might have the automulus, (an animal, used for the purpose of transportation,) to take his girl for a ride. In the words of Leggette, the father replied, "No, my sonne, you tooke my newe 1284 moddel oute the othere nighte, and ranne ye bloominge thing in ye ditche, breaking out six fronte teethe, breakinge one legge, and causinge me to have to have newe haire grafted on the annimal, and the haire did notte matche, and ye graftere would notte refund my money. So you most assuredly canne notte have ye automulus."

Although the Doojabs were primarily peace loving people they sometimes had wars with the Oolie—Woolies, a race of people who lived on the site of the place where now lies the city of Charlotte. The wars were carried on in the following manner: the fighters would single out their adversary, give the customary salutation, "Galook," and start butting each other with their heads. When one fell unconscious, his opponent carried him behind the latter's lines, and after the war, he was made to work on the falliago farms. So you see, even if the nations of today disarmed, there are always methods of fighting.

"Personally, I found the manuscript very instructive, and I feel sure that you agree with me, that they were a very interesting people."

WE BLUSH

"School" does not wish anyone to think us conceited, but we felt like patting ourselves on the back, when we received the following letter, from Mr. Ralph Lewis, Director of Forensic Activities, in the High School.

To the Staff of "School,"
Dear Sirs:

Your magazine ranks among my favorite periodicals, because of its complete veracity in dealing with any subject. I know that I can depend on anything that I see in its pages, being the absolute truth.

Yours truly,
W. Ralph Lewis

RECOGNITION

"School," wishes to extend recognition to the following—

B. C. Dunford, writer of the Alma Mater Song for the High School, received his inspiration for the song from a sonata of Beethoven. It was first given in public, at the Class Day exercise of the graduating class of January, 1933. The writer of the song is a member of the June Class.

Mary Miller, winner of second place, in the annual Lenoir Rhyne Declamation Contest. Miss Miller, as winner of second place, was awarded a silver medal. She used as her declamation "Angel's Wickedness."

Lamar Welfare, representing the High School in the American Legion Oratorical Contest, on the subject, "Education in the Public Schools of North Carolina."

The debating team and its coach, Mr. Ralph Lewis. Affirmative team, composed of Brooks Skinner and Fred Denny—won over Greensboro's negative, by a two to one decision, in the Richard J. Reynolds Memorial Auditorium, on March 31. Negative team composed of Lamar Welfare and Bobby Helm—lost by a two to one decision to High Point's affirmative, in High Point, on the same date. Due to the fact that all the negative teams in the triangle lost their debates, none of the schools went to Chapel Hill, to compete for the Aycock Memorial Cup.

Sara Ingram, winner of the five dollar prize, offered by Mr. Moore for the person learning the largest number of hymns.

John Carroll Wiggins, whose essay on the mosquito was chosen to represent the school in the Gorgas Memorial Contest.

Eloise Baynes, Fred Walters, and Anne Belton, whose papers were sent to Chapel Hill to compete in the Latin contest—Caroline Diehl, John Wiggins, and George Bynum, whose papers were entered in the French Contest.

Odell Smothers, chosen as center of the All State Football team, Robert Voss, as All Southern Tackle, Mike Sapp, All State Guard for two years.

Laura Bland, writer of "The Island," winner of first prize in the state playwriting contest.

Jack McMichael and Rudolph Bolling, who won an "A" average for meritorous achievement in scholastics.

PROBLEMS RELIEF

In a stormy scene in the House of Representatives yesterday, the Stokes Problems Relief Bill passed by a 48 to 9 vote.

The "Relief Forces", led by Henry Stokes, overrode a stiff opposition, led by Ernest Byrd, and brought the matter to a vote.

Chief features of the Problems Relief Bill are:

1. No outlining will be required in the American Problems Course.
2. Only three problems will be given during the course, allowing six weeks for each problem.
3. The use of any problem based on books written by Magruder, Burch and Patterson, or Baker-Crothers is forbidden.
4. American Problems will be an elective course.

Relief advocates are jubilant over their success. A bill is now being discussed, which provides for Latin and Mathematics Relief.

President McMichael, on the passage of the Problems Relief Bill—"The Problems Relief Bill marks a great stride in the advancement of civilization in the Richard J. Reynolds High School."

SCRIP

During recent hard times, Bill Froelich was found one Wednesday outside the lunch room, completely covered with paper certificates, bearing the name of Blotz and Company. When finally brought to, he muttered,

"I'm treasurer of the Club Dawn, and a fellow owed us a debt of $25. Well, today he paid me in Blotz Scrip, but the bank didn't know anything about it, so they wouldn't let me put it in our checking account. Then I went to the cafeteria, to see if they would give me cash for it. They told me they would give me a popsicle for the whole lot. I staggered out in the hall and fainted."

Upon investigation it was found that no such company existed. The scrip had passed through so many hands, that the source could not be found. The members of the Club Dawn divided the popsicle, which they bought with the scrip.

DEBATING

On February 40, 1933 a debate was held on the query: Resolved—A giraffe with a sore throat is worse off than a centipede with corns.

Harry Parker, Jr. and William Lytle represented the affirmative side, —the negative, B. C. Dunford, Jr. and Tyler Port.

Affirmative arguments: The giraffe has more neck to hurt. (A sore throat hurts worse than a corn, anyway), The query does not state how many corns a centipede has.

Negative arguments: A centipede has one or two corns on each toe—so therefore he has at least five hundred corns. Neither does the query state the number of inches of the giraffe's throat which are sore.

The judges—Miss Nix, Miss Heilig, and Mr. Joyner. Decision—Miss Nix—Affirmative, Miss Heilig —Negative. The debate was necessarily a tie, because Mr. Joyner went to sleep.

SLURPING AND GURGLING

Which do you prefer, to slurp or to gurgle your soup? Opinions of some future candidates for "Who's Who in America," on this subject of school wide interest quoted:

Miss Jones: I like gurgling better because it's more musical.

Mr. Leggette: Gurgling is my favorite. Why? Because it makes it taste better.

Clifton Naughton: I prefer gurgling because it reminds me of the burbling brook.

Eloise Baynes: I prefer slurping because I always choke when I gurgle.

Miss Kapp: I prefer just to drink it down.

Mary Lewis Hutchison: I don't like to slurp or gurgle—in fact, I don't like soup.

Miss Weaver: I dunk!

Miss Rogers: I prefer to slurp my soup because the hissing noise is so pretty. You're not apt to lose any when you slurp.

Laura Bland: A little bit of both, —'cause it tastes better.

Bill Womble: Assorted noises are my favorites.

Frances Angelo: I prefer slurping,

Press Aeronautics

because no one likes for me to.

Edna Earl Clinard: I'd rather drink mine with a funnel.

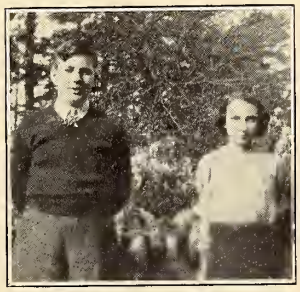

Miss Watts: I always drink mine through a straw, because it keeps the soup a long way off.

The Association of Lunch Room Cashiers, through the President Mrs. Dorothy Forsyth, issued the following statement: We don't like for people to slurp or gurgle, but if they must, let them all do the same thing, because when some are slurping and some gurgling it makes a discord, and we find it difficult to count change correctly.

PRESS

GOOD SALESMANSHIP

Laura Bland and George Norfleet are due a great deal of recognition for the good salesmanship they displayed in the recent Crowell Publishing Company campaign. They sold sixteen subscriptions each. A "thank you" for their good work is extended to them by the Black and Gold Staff.

BLAND AND NORFLEET

NAMES THAT MAKE NEWS

RUTH PETREE

You'll find Ruth around the Journalism room. She often looks tired and ready to give up—and no wonder, she is Managing Editor of Pine Whispers.

NANCY SCHALLERT

Nancy has become outstanding because of her dramatic work. She has an unusually large vocabulary too. (Wonder if she knows what all the words mean?)

JOE KING

Joe is that well-known student who can work wonders with a brush, paints, or pen.

PAULINE DAVIS

Better known as "Pinky". One reason why Max Snead prefers blonds.

MAXWELL SNEAD

Max is just another ladies' man. He's Class President, basketball captain, and a football star, too.

MARJORIE WILSON

Personality is her middle name. Perhaps you have heard her sing for Otto Liipfert's High Hats.

MARY WOODRUFF

Mary is a Junior. Her charm and pleasing personality has won for her the friendship of the entire student body.

JOHN SHULTZ

Johnny is the handsome orchestra leader. His great popularity is surely justified.

JACK McMICHAEL

Jack has the honor of being President of the Student Body. He is a friend to everyone in the high school.

MARY STARR MARTIN

Mary Starr is the star beauty in the Senior class; Bill Hatcher the best looking boy in that class, is her flame.

JEANETTE KELLY

Jeanette is the petite blond who slipped into the fish-pond and was drowned. And all the poor fish??

ROBERT M. HELM

"Bobby" is the little boy who goes in for Socialism and public speaking in a big way.

JEAN PATTERSON

"Jeannie" draws most of the clever cartoons in Pine Whispers. It is reported that she dislikes all members of the "Zilch" family.

TEN BEST!

In the course of a school year many interesting and important things have happened. Within our school we have had good times; in competition with other high schools we have state-wide recognition. All of these items have appeared in Pine Whispers and it would be quite difficult to pick out the most important ones. But after careful thought here is a list of the ten items which we think the most outstanding:

1. Presidential Election Story.
2. Laura Bland's play, "The Island".
3. Subscription Contest.
4. Stunt Night.
5. David Fetter Acts as Mayor.
6. Debating Team Chosen.
7. Commencement Exercise.
8. Alma Mater Song Selected.
9. Cheer Leaders Elected.
10. Annual Dedication.

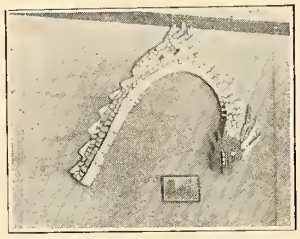

Other stories mentioned for ten best:

1. George Blum is Awarded Metal for Perfect Attendance.
2. Bob Steelman Becomes Principal of School.
3. School Closes for Nine Months Vacation; Only Three Month School Next Year.

THE "F" GIRL

Daisy—she hangs a solitary monster on the wall—calling and urging the Journalism students to greater heights. To those who do not know Daisy, she appears ferocious and her very nostrils seem to quiver with desire for human blood. Her slender body is covered in shining scales and her fangs seem to shoot forth a living fire.

But Daisy has seen her best days. She is no longer young and gay. Four years ago at one of those famous football parades, Daisy was on the front of a gaily decorated Pine Whispers car. Ah, how proud she looked! But due to a careless driver in the car ahead, Daisy lost her tail.

DAISY
"An old Spanish Custom"

The bust of Daisy remains—a journalistic tradition.

AERONAUTICS

ROBERT GIBSON

Robert Gibson, popular member of the junior class, is the only licenced pilot in the student body at the present time, although there are many who are very much interested in the subject.

MADE PILOT

In August of last year Robert obtained his transport license, which made him eligible to fly a plane with passengers at no cost to the passengers. He is the only person in the state to ever obtain a permit at his age.

LIKES FLYING

If any one would ask Robert what was his hobby he would say he had rather fly a plane than any other thing. Because he has a natural "hanker" for it.

HAD MODEL— Robert always looked on Smith Reynolds as a model. The latter obtained his permit at the age of sixteen while a member of the Richard J. Reynolds student body. Like-wise Robert was the second to ever obtain license while in high school.

MODEL AIRPLANES

During last year there was an Aeronautics club in the high school for the building of model air-planes and quite a number of boys took great interest in this club. At the present time, Herman Jolitz is probably the most successful member of the student body with model air-plane building. One of his planes received recognition in the National Contest staged at Detroit two years ago.

OTHERS INTERESTED

There are also a number of other boys who are interested in building these planes. B. C. Dunford, Ernest Isley, Cletus Reece, Boyd Hendrix, N. E. Perry, Bill Hatcher, Joe Currin, Wilson Bolling, Mike Disher, and many other try their hand at this instructive pastime.

Music and Art

MANY STATEMENTS

Bill Hatcher and Otto Liipfert say that they are making plans to purchase one of the largest ships out; that is, after they have located a job.

Otto is thinking very seriously of buying a blimp in which he might transport his orchestra.

MUSIC AND ART

YOUNG WINGS COVER

Frances Tillett was awarded three of the Junior Literary Guild books for the first prize in the Junior Literary Guild contest held in January. Members of the art department submitted cover designs for the Junior Literary Guild Magazine. Frances Tillett's design was selected for the cover and five others were used in the magazine. Jean Patterson, Emily Vaughan, Albert Shermer, Gilbert Lee, and Charles Bagwell were awarded books for honorable mention.

MR JOYNER PAINTS——WHAT?

We thought we would tell you now, rather than wait until later and let you find it out for yourself. Mr. Joyner really and truly paints ——yeah—the clouds with sunshine. No kidding, his picture "Thunderation" took first place at a recent exhibit held in Swastika. It must have been thunder if painted after the first period.

THE SAME

Is it possible——that Floyd Greene paints? We heard that he could draw a little but as for painting that's still news. Wonder if the picture entitled "Birdie" could have been painted by another Floyd Greene?

WINNER

Emily Vaughn must be given credit for adding prestige to this year's art department. She won a scholarship prize for the best poster in the Business and Professional Woman's contest.

ART EXHIBITS

The two Art Exhibits recently held here were appreciated and thoroughly enjoyed by those who saw them. They were really worthwhile works. The selections varied with landscapes, marinescapes, still life, and portraits. To the Pratical Art Co. and Miss Leiger, the school is indebted for this priviledge.

DUE RECOGNITION

Gilbert Lee, one of our modest artists, has gained recognition by winning second place in the Carolina State Dramatic poster contest held in Chapel Hill. Congratulations Gilbert!

WHO FILLED THE VACUUM?

We had a vacuum in the band pit and quite a large vacuum at that. But it wasn't long before we noticed that the vacuum was filled. Investigation found that Styers Tesh had returned to the band. Was that vacuum filled and how!!!!

SUPREME?

Speaking of Symphony Orchestras, we found that there were two in the High School but neither knew which was the better. This could not be settled peacefully and so was settled otherwise. They both played(?), and the winner was selected by the audience. John Shultz and his Rhythmettes won against Otto Liipfert and his Hi-Hats. John asked

Shultz and Liipfert
"With a Hey, Nonny, Nonny"

Otto what he thought of the decision and Otto, gentleman that he is, replied, "Twas for the better man to win." Do you know Otto?

NEW TALENT

It's here and inclosed in five feet and ten inches of height and one hundred sixty pounds of weight . . . unique Burnette Hines. And can he sing! Ask me. This talent has remained successfully hidden all these years and was only discovered accidentally when singing in the halls. Miss Davis would benefit should she investigate this new Caruso, in her leisure time. Should you ask Burnette (Bunny) about this he might vigorously deny it. Don't take his word for it, take ours, we know.

BILLY PURL

Congratulations! Marjorie Wilson and Gaither Johnson have been given long term contracts by Billy Purl with his Revue. This local talent was chosen from several hundred contestants Wednesday night when Billy held an audition for the public. Marjorie and Gaither both seem satisfied with their contracts which terminate fifty years from the year thirty-three.

GREENSBORO (WHAT?)

Our annual Music Contest brought forth much unsuspected talent. Look at our bass singer, Herbert Chambers. Is it possible that so much volume can be enclosed in such a slim form as that? And our tenor, commonly known as Earle Burchette. The Mixed Chorus composed of none other than the well-known Salesmanship Club is quite a "delightful" body. But the greatest surprise of all was the Quartet. It was this group led by Miss Margaret Bailey and including "Fat" Frazier, Dick McNulty, Peyton Poe, and Jim Kimel that took first place in the National Contest.

STUNT NIGHT

The Music Department took first place stunt night with their scene of Gypsey life in Romany. 'Twas indeed a colorful place. Much life was put into it by the leading characters: Jeanette Kelly and Kenneth Bryant.

NEW MATERIAL

A new boy, here from Junior High shows promise in voice. His name is Ted Bodenheimer.

Milestones

MILESTONES

SUED FOR DIVORCE. Mrs. Robert Meredith Helm, Jr., the former Winifred Swaim, is suing for divorce on grounds of brutality. She testified that Helm beat her every evening after dinner.

DIED FROM BRAIN EXERTION.

Rudolph Bolling passed away quietly at his home, May 1. The doctors, after a close examination and study of the case, decided that it was the only one of its kind. They reported that it was 'xerolyzne", meaning just an overdose of study.

SUED FOR BREACH OF PROMISE. June Williams recently sued Roy Wooten for breach of promise. His recent attention to Mozelle Styers was stated as the cause. Roy says that June is still the only woman for him.

RUMOR. It is reported that Pauline Davis Snead, when she departed from Winston-Salem last week, was on her way to Reno. It is believed here that she is planning to divorce Maxwell Snead because he has recently been attending social affairs with Mary Starr Martin. Miss Martin said that as soon as they are divorced, Snead will marry her. However, Snead denies all rumors.

DIED. George Blum's little pal, "Shorty" Bagnal, was crushed to death in the Pine Whispers Office when Jeanette Kelly came dancing in and seeing no one in the chair flopped down rather heavily.

EXECUTED. Jim Hutchins was electrocuted Tuesday morning at 5:05. The jury found him guilty of the murder of Jim Cofer, and Judge Bob White sentenced him to die. Just before his death he confessed having killed Cofer because he had been seeing too much of Mary Starr Martin.

BIRTHDAY. On her recent fourteenth birthday, Mary Jane Lindley decided that she must begin living differently. Her best resolution was to be kind to dumb animals.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF MARRIAGE. Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Perryman announce the marriage of their daughter Mary Laura to Mr. Pete Wilson, on June 15. The wedding will take place at Pepper's Warehouse, and Rev. K. O. Frazier will officiate using the impressive ring ceremony. Frank Umstead and Edgar Pearce will offer as a duet, "Just Before the Battle, Mother." The bride is very talented in eating and talking and is a graduate of the University of Greater Nutmeg Graters. Mr. Wilson received the C. O. D. degree at Jackson Training School.

Medicine and Science

DIED. Miss Winnie Murphy was drowned here May 2. While walking down the hall to the office one of the animal heads fell down on her and the horn went down her throat. She went into convulsions, jumping through the glass out into the fish pond.

DIED. Last Tuesday Fred Walters, going crazy over his American Problems, developed a case of hydrophobia and bit Ruth Davis. Both became so mad that they ran wild through the hall bringing down several victims. The unfortunate ones who are to be buried Friday during chapel period are: Mrs. Anderson, Miss Whitley, Miss Edwards, and Miss Hendricks.

DOROTHY SHAW
"Here Comes the Bride!"

MARRIED. Dorothy Shaw, last week, led her latest victim to the altar. The lucky bride-groom is O. H. Fisher. This makes her fifth matrimonial attempt. The bride wore a gown of yellow tulle over a slip of red satin and carried a corsage of dandelions and Queen Anne's Lace.

MOBBED. Fletcher Duggins, young crooner, was recently mobbed. He walked into his history class crooning "Brother, Can You Spare a Dime?" The rendition drove his classmates crazy. They jumped upon him from all directions. The remains are to be buried on Hanes Field and there will be a special holiday from school for the occasion.

MARRIAGE ANNOUNCEMENT. Announcement has been made that Miss Margie Tuttle and Shirley (Cab Calloway,) Smith, both of Winston-Salem were married at Martinsville, Virginia, April 15. Mrs. Smith is very talented in dancing and she was starred in Earl Carrol's" Vanities of 1928. Mr. Smith has made a fortune in the last three years doubling for Cab Calloway.

DIES. Bill MacIntosh passed away in the library here last Wednesday while preparing a floor talk for Mr. Wells' History class. His death was a result of an experiment planned by the teachers of the 9A class. Mr. Wells was to give him a floor talk each morning for eighteen weeks, and he was preparing his seventeenth when he died.

SUES FOR BREACH OF PROMISE. Miss Margaret Horne is now suing Tommy Davis for breach of promise for looking at Nan Myers all during chapel period. Davis had promised Miss Horne that he would never glance at another girl, but when Nan Myers came along, he couldn't keep this promise.

MEDICINE AND SCIENCE

WHAT'S WRONG, ELSIE?

Elsie Jordan, that good looking and indolent junior, spends much of her time in the nurses office suffering from toothache, eye trouble, headache, or maybe it was mumps.

THIS DEPRESSION!

The suitors of the school's popular weaker sex namely, Mary Miller, Maxine Pusey and Margaret Rose, since the depression has hit so hard, have stopped taking them to pay dances and it is whispered that they were seen at St. Vitas' Dance.

FROM OVERWORK!

Miss Fay Martin is on the verge of a nervous breakdown from overwork. So are her pupils!!

A BAD DISEASE!

Miss Mather has become afflicted with Pill-roller's Palsy.

HE WOULD!

Charles McCuiston is getting along nicely after a recent operation. Last week at R.J.R. Infirmary he had some of his classes cut out.

RAH!! RAH!!

At the last Basketball game, Peggy Bowen dislocated her vocal cords and since that time has been suffering from "Involuntary Verbal Suppression," much to the relief of her teachers.

A SCOTCHMAN?

Miss Nix should be awarded a medal for her scientific method of monetary extraction. Lamar Welfare swallowed a quarter and after the failure of several doctors to remove it, he was carried in great agony to Miss Nix who immediately extracted the coin by threatening to expell him if his library fee was not paid at once.

IMPORTANT

Mr. David Wilcox, Professor of Chemistry, in recognition of his research work, has been honored in chemistry. After 914 pains-taking experiments, he discovered a fly in the ointment.

THANKS TO YOU!!

Mr. Buchanan, the science genius of Winston-Salem, claims to have envolved a method of making onions odorless. A breath taking experiment!!

A NOBLE EFFORT—

Miss Flossie Martin is finishing her 87th noble experiment and is almost ready to come out with a lengthy and scientific discourse on the subject, "What a tadpole does with his tale when he goes froggy".

OH DOCTOR!

Joe Belton, who had a very serious disease, asked Dr. Suzanne Weeks how he was getting along. The doctor replied, "Well, you have a disease in which 999 out of every thousand die, but I think probably you will get well."

PROF HALTIWANGER
"Courts for cow now"

CROWDED

This year in the Science Department there are twenty-two classes; four teachers, teaching full time, Mr. Buchanan, Mr. Haltiwanger, Miss Martin, and Mr. Wilcox; One teaches part time, Mr. Brimley; four subjects, Biology, Chemistry, Physics, and General Science; and Mr. Haltiwanger heads this department.

I WONDER WHY ?

Miss Dobson says that her most frequent callers in the nurses office are the ones who make up the "A" list.

HURRY BACK!

Members of the Boys Metric Science Club will leave for a tour to the World Fair on June 3, for seven days stay, the trip being made on a Greyhound Bus. The party during the trip will visit points of interest such as the largest steel mine in the world, The Kellogg Cereal Plant, and Ivory Soap Co.

TOO BAD

Miss Bullock has had a spontaneous rupture of her vocabulary. This was preceded by mild prodromal symptoms of lingual incontinence.

HANDLING OF TEAM

By Coach Leggette

My apologies to successful coaches who know how to handle their teams and the individuals on it.

A football team is made up of personalities. The coach's first duty is to recognize these and study them so that he will be able to deal with each in a sympathetic and just way.

Enthusiasm in his work and confidence in his team is a big factor to be considered in handling a football team. These are an aid in demanding the respect and confidence of the team.

A coach must require absolute obedience and a willingness on the part of individuals on the team to follow the rules and instructions which are given.

He must keep constantly before his boys the idea of spirit and team work. Each individual must be led unconsciously to accept the idea that he must do all in his power to contribute to the success of the team and not his personal honor.

The safety of a player depends upon his physical and mental condition as well as his knowledge of the fundamentals of the game. The boy is responsible for taking care of his body and keeping himself physically fit. The coach can determine to a great extent the mental attitude of a player by commendation at the appropriate times arousing enthusiam.

Finally, success in handling a football team depends upon a strong desire upon the part of each individual to play the game and a real love for it.

REVUE OF SPORTS

SIGNALS!!

Football ended the season of 1932 with a team of stars. Although playing on a losing team, several boys won recognition throughout the state. "Snooky" Smothers, the big rambling fullback of the team, crashed through the heavy lines of Greensboro, High Point, Salisbury, Gastonia, and Charlotte to gain a position on the All-State eleven. "Snooky" was the high score man of the Black Demons. He has proved himself to be one of the greatest football players that has ever played on a high school team, and he will always hold a perch amoung the leading athletes of our school. Mike Sapp, the hard charging guard and Captain of the team set aside many opposing guards and tackles to gain a position on the All Western eleven. Max Snead, (the crooner), Jack Tuttle (the big brute), Ralph Hardee (the gift from Heaven), and Willie Hatcher (the best looking quarterback in the state(?) received honorable mention from the coaches of the state.

CAGERS

When football ends there must be some sport to take its place. In our dear old school, basketball is our next major sport. Our team this year was one of high hopes—the hopes coming from every lover of sport in our city. The team was led by that handsome basketball star Max Snead. During the year Max made a name as one of the best basketball players and captains ever to play on a Winston-Salem team. Aiding Max, and very

MAXWELL SNEAD
"One of the Best"

Theatre

ably aiding him was Jim Hutchins. Jim and Max were the two big stars of the team. "Hutch" is in our minds the best defensive guard in the state. At all times he is fighting for his team and his school. Both Hutchins and Snead hold high bids for All State Honors. McNeil and Caudle were helpful during the season.

CINDERMEN

Among the spring sports there are several interesting stars. In track the biggest star is Ernest Byrd. He is the boy who is considered the best hurdler in the state. Ernest has many victories tied to his belt and has many hopes for the state record this year. Next in line is the relay team. This team rates among the leading relay teams of the south. It is composed of Hugh Duggins (our woman's man), Smothers (the rosy cheeked, black—curly haired hero), Lanier (the dear!!), Kinney (the heart breaker), McNulty (the wizard) and Byrd (our cinder men's ideal). The team has a strong chance for the championship and is out to win.

FIELD AND STREAM

For the first time in four years the cross country team lost the state championship. The boys who held their own during the season were Kinney, the state champion in 1931, Sandefur, the small hard fighting young man, and Holden, a new member in our high school.

RUGBY

Another minor sport that has caught the public eye is soccer. The big stars were Bill Robinson, Joyner Burns, and Ernest Byrd. Although the team never entered the state championship race, they beat nearly every team that rated in the conference.

FORE!!

Golf, a new sport in the high school, is making a good name for itself. It was led by Brownlow and Nunn. These two boys have shown up well in the state and are fighting hard for the championship.

READY—SERVE!!

Spring brings about one of the most popular sports known. Tennis is led by Hutchins (the big athlete), Cranford (the sheik), and Snead (Buddy can you spare a dime). These three boys are expecting much from the state meet and the team has a good chance to win.

STRIKE!!

Baseball headed for the battle with only four warriors but it was backed by many young promising rookies. Tuttle, the big football star, holds the booth in the outfield. Swaim and Garwood are the representatives for the mound with the rooky Barney Weeks (the Saxophone player from the Rhythmettes) looking good to the Coach as a first baseman. Anderson is the representative star from the infield.

Business and Finance

LEPER SPECIAL

The Winston Hi-Players presented another of their humorous evenings of entertainment with the performance of "The Island", state winning play, written by Laura Bland. The story of "The Island" concerns a Chinese warlord, who having promised to marry his spy, sends her to prison and marries another. The spy escapes and returns, seeking revenge. Parts were ably played by hysterical Anne Belton, as the spy; dignified Jack McMichael, as the warlord; able Nancy Schallert, as the warlord's mother, bloody John D. Slawter, as the messenger; and the quiet Laura Bland, as the warlord's wife.

This play contained the same delicate humor as other past Winston Hi performances. "Death Comes to Sonia", "The East Wind's Spell", and "The Finger of God".

CRAZY?

Anne Belton was considered by many the most outstanding character in "The Island". At one time she became so hysterical that it was whispered around the audience that she had gone crazy. A doctor's examination proved this theory wrong, however.

To play the part of the disheveled spy took a good deal of dramatic ability. Miss Belton played the part to perfection.

KITCHEN COMEDY

"Cooks and Cardinals", the play production entered by the Winston-Hi Players, takes place in the kitchen of Bridget Conelly, cook to Cardinal Wheeler. This kitchen is

B. C. DUNFORD Jr.
"Also Ran"

invaded by a French chef Levraut, who is cook to the Italian Cardinal Manducci. The buxom Mrs. Conelly, who dislikes having any man in her kitchen, repulses Levraut with a terrible buffet upon the cheek. The way in which Levraut finally gets to cook spaghetti for Cardinal Manducci is truly tragic.

The cast of "Cooks and Cardinals" was as follows. Bridget Conelly, Becky Holton; Teddy, Bill Hatcher; Kathleen, Mary Starr Martin; Father Anselm, John Carroll Wiggins; Levraut, B. C. Dunford, Jr., Cardinal Wheeler, Bill Womble.

Everybody should have seen the "cute" and realistic way in which the handsome Bill Hatcher tried to kiss the fair Mary Starr Martin. You did a plumb good "try", Bill.

BOOO—

"Spooks", the bloodiest tragedy ever presented at the R. J. Reynolds Auditorium, was the first shot out of the box of the Winston-Hi Players. The story deals with the adventures of four heirs of an eccentric millionaire, who states in his will that the heirs must spend three consecutive nights in his house if they want the fortune.

The illustrious cast included: Tyler Port, Elizabeth Livengood, Wilhelmina Bargoil, Bill Womble, Mary Starr Martin, Albert Butler, Jack McMichael, Catherine Johnson, and Henry Wimbish.

"Spooks" was the most horrible play ever seen here. Many soft-hearted ladies in the audience fainted when Jack McMichael and Albert Butler were so brutally murdered.

BUSINESS AND FINANCE

SHULTZ AND LIIPFERT

Johnny Shultz and his Rhythmettes are giving daily performances at the city junk yard for the charity institutions of Winston-Salem. Otto Liipfert and his Hi Hats are at present bumming rides to New York in search of fame. They left the 18th of March.

SWIMMING CLASS

Miss Ruth Ford is holding a swimming class at Peters Creek on Tuesday and Thursday of each week for her former home room. She has encountered some difficulty because of Hanes Field being turned into a cow pasture. Howard Morris, dressed as a goat to frighten the cows away from the party of swimmers has proved an invaluable help.

CHARITY

Bunny Hines is giving out bread for the charity institutions of the city in order to earn a cent a day to buy Kathleen Cooper her daily Baby Ruth. Kathleen cries constantly for this extravagance and Bunny "carries on" for her. "She shall not go unfed." he mutters as he gives out the crusts to famished friends.

DINNER AT EIGHT

Two course dinners are the usual order when Hubert Couch takes Mary out — First course — banana; Second course — orange.

TO COMBAT DEPRESSIONISTS

Jimmie Kerr gets out his kiddie car daily and goes for a spin. Last Monday down by the High Lunch he found Albert Shermer sitting on the curb fervently eating an all day sucker and longing for an old time hot-dog.

People Animals

AMBITION REALIZED

The ambition of Bobby Helm to be a doctor has suddenly been realized through the depression. Bobby is doctoring Mr. Moore's chickens who are ill from lack of nourishment.

SCHOOLS CLOSE

Extra! Extra! Shouted George Stoney, a freckled-face paper boy, as he ran up and down the streets of that "depression-hit" Winston-Salem. Banks had closed, stores failed, and people were dying of hunger, but never before had the schools closed.

STUDENTS WEEP

The announcement was such a shock and the students were so distressed that they are seen everywhere dressed in black and weeping desperately.

TEACHERS PRESERVED

But where did the teachers go?——Those good faithful "creatures" went out bravely to defeat starvation. Some did die and were placed in bottles of alcohol and presented to the Salem museum. The museum feels much indebted to the "depression" for causing it to receive these valued specimens.

FEW WORK

Some few found work in honorable places.

CLEANING HOUSE

Mr. Moore is gathering eggs and cleaning the chicken house of one of the better known poultry farms near Kernersville.

MILLION DOLLAR BABY

Miss Rogers is one of those "flirty" dime store clerks selling school supplies. Miss Kapp assists on Saturday.

SPARE A DIME

"Gum! Gum!" shouts Miss Mary Huggins as she walks slowly down Fourth Street. "I've had so little exercise recently," she stated.

WHITE WING

Mr. Barkley sings to the rhythm of his street broom as he sweeps over dusty streets. A great advantage to Mr. Barkley because now he can speak and sing his French all day without stopping.

WORKS NOW

Mr. William Perry is now manager of the janitors in the Journal and Sentinel Building. He states that he much prefers teaching because as a janitor it is necessary that he clean up after everybody else instead of everybody cleaning up after him. He longs to return home to his wife and children.

FEW FAITHFUL

What are the students doing in this lean year? Only a few industrious students are digging away at chemistry or American Problems since the school closed.

NIGHT LIFE

Ruth Petree when asked how she liked her new job replied, "I love it." She is a cigarette girl at the Ritzy Night Club in New York.

PEOPLE

COMPETITION!

Paderewski is having much competition now while B. C. Dunford is at large.

HONORED

Miss Mary Woodruff, who is ambassador of Great Britain, honored Miss Evelyn Tesh, newspaper reporter, by giving her an interview. She agreed to contribute a half hour to Miss Tesh. Both women went to the same school. Miss Woodruff stated that being ambassador was an exceedingly hard job.

RAISE!

Hugh Duggins, who is a porter for the Norfolk and Western Railway, is doing very well, state the employers. They agreed to raise his salary a dollar since he is to be married. The bride to be is Marjorie Tuttle. They figured she was worth at least a dollar.

WET!

Miss Jean Patterson, formerly a student of R. J. Reynolds High School, who was in Cincinnati at the time of the flood was seen calmly sitting on a housetop which was floating down the river, reading a letter. She later said that she had made a world's record as she did not get wet!

MAGIC

Wesley Snyder who overthrew Houdini was seen in the Metropolitian Theatre last week. He changed a duck to a human before your eyes. It is understood that the R. J. Reynolds Co. has put him under contract.

When you have to concentrate on a heavy theme

TAKE this tip from Prince Albert: Pack your pipe with P. A. and make fire with a match! That's the formula. Nothing complicated. And it works, it works! Yes, Sir! Every jimmy-pipe bowl is a well of inspiration when it's packed with cool, fragrant, soothing Prince Albert.

You'll cerebrate . . . and celebrate the discovery. Prince Albert is sure the right kind of pal to tie to. No matter how stiff the grade, P. A. will go right along with you. Can't bite your tongue or parch your throat, because the Prince Albert process won't let it.

Let Prince Albert cheer you with your work. Let it sweep away the mental cobwebs as nothing else can. In all the world of fine tobaccos, there's nothing like friendly P. A. Slip into top-speed now and head for the nearest store where they hand out jimmy-pipe joy in tidy red tins, marked "Prince Albert."

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

"A POOR MARRIED MAN"

A horrible tragedy, "A Poor Married Man", was presented under the auspices of the track team in Reynolds Auditorium. This was the second play of the year. The story dealt with a college professor, a country doctor, the doctor's daughter, a widow, the widow's daughter, a young college boy, and a colored maid. The plot lay in the confusing manner in which the parties concerned marry.

Some members of the cast were the well known tragedian actor, John Shultz; the studious Eldridge Carter; and the handsome Edgar Pierce.

APRIL—AND YOU

When April days roll 'round again,
And the sky is clear and blue;
When rain is on the lilac tree,
My heart is calling you.

While the dusk is falling
Soft winds whisper in my ear
That April was made for spring and youth,
And that I love you, dear.

Even the flowers nod and know
Along the avenue,
And all the birds are singing
That I'm in love with you.

STORM

I stood and watched a storm on the sea
From the top of a lonely hill,
And all things near seemed to me,
Touched by a magic thrill.

I pulled my hat down nearer my face
I drew my slicker close around me,
And stood enthralled by the mad race
Of the whirling mighty sea.

The wind howled and a frightened bird
Strayed from its sheltering rock.
Another followed and then a third
Scurried back and guarded the flock.

Do You Know Your School?

By Joe King

We have had "Know Your City Week" and know this and know that, so now we'll ask you, "Do you know your school?" You should, at least. Many of us should after being over here four, five, six, or a dozen years.

For instance:

1. How many stories high is our school?

2. How many windows in the cafeteria?

3. How many columns in front of the auditorium?

4. What is the seating capacity of the auditorium?

5. How many red-headed teachers do we have?

6. How tall is Mr. Moore?

7. How long has Miss Tinder been with us?

8. How many periods are there in a full day?

9. How many janitors work for the school?

10. How far is it to the court-house square?

11. How old is the school?

12. How many entrances to the library?

13. Where did the animal heads come from?

Don't ask me, I'm asking you!

BABY SISTER

She always learned to watch for me.
When I came home at night
She'd hold her toys for me to see
All gleaming in the light.
Nothing made her happier
Than for me to take her on my knee,
For no one loved me better
Than baby sister loved me.

B. Lamar Welfare was a knight of fame.
He rode a horse, Elmira by name.
He loved a lady, Virginia Dare
Cause she was a princess very fair.
He went to win her from a villian bold,
Across fields, oceans and icebergs cold.
With his little hatchet he killed a dragon
And took it to Virginia in his little wagon.
The villian died of fright at this,
So our story ends with a dramatic kiss.

Cherrio!

While plodding down the street, carrying a huge pile of books, I was feeling very despondent. Things had gone wrong! Assignments for the day had been too long and tiresome. Still pondering over the occurances of the past hours, a melodious song struck my ear. A robin was sending fourth his melody full of cheer. High above me, he sang—singing as if his heart were overflowing with true happiness. My shoulders felt a bit straighter and my walk a great deal swifter. The song of this happy bird had lifted me out of the depths of gloom and dread. I, too, began to sing my song.

Alone we stood, your hands in mine,
With eyes so lovely blue and fine,
With heart so true and so kind,
Filled with love so divine.
'T was there that cupid played her
Song of joy into my heart,
And made me know that you were mine
Never to depart.

HANROTH SQUARE

Helen Haworth

Hanroth Square is dreaming in the sunshine and slumbering time away. Nothing of any note to the rest of the world ever happens there. As far as the world is concerned Hanroth does not exist. But, nevertheless, people do live in Hanroth Square and things do happen. There are human beings in Hanroth who live and die, laugh and weep, and there lives are just as tragic and equally as comic as any that are read about in books.

Hanroth Square is a town of ancient ideals and traditions. It has changed little since it was first settled by those courageous, truthseeking Calvinists back in the period of Reformation. Since the time of the first settlement, the customs have not been changed.

Agriculture is the chief occupation in the quiet village . The simple village folk reap an honest livelyhood from such work as raising various southern fruits, well adapted to the climate. All the inhabitants of the place seem to be very backward and simple, but behind all their awkwardness lies the dauntless courage of their ancestors, smouldering in its last stages—

But there is one thing, however, to which the people of Hanroth Square are loyal, and that thing is religion. There is only one recognized church. To be sure there are other denominations, new comers to the village in recent years, who have set up other churches, but the church remains, the people of Hanroth remain devout and loyal to the religion of their forefathers.

But as set apart and as remote from the rest of the world as Hanroth is, strange things have been known to happen—In the darkness and shadows of every family closet, some horrible skleton is lurking, prepared at any moment to be drawn from the closet and presented to the rest of the world.

The minister at the little chapel is practically a new comer to the village. Five years ago it has been since he first came to Hanroth, bringing with him his pretty young wife. He had just been graduated from the Seminary and was taking his first church.

McGregor had arrived in Hanroth with his young, handsome head full of new ideas and schemes, but these schemes did not seem to work out well. His congregation belonged to the old school, and did not believe in change. What was good enough for their fathers was good enough for them. McGregor could not get to the heart of this unemotional, stern congregation as had his predecessor, an old fellow who had grown up in the village with the people. McGregor was something from the outside world which did not fit well in the scenery of Hanroth. He was a young upstart from the university and was too new-fangled for them.

After a period of five years, however, McGregor has succeded in getting a step nearer the hearts of his people. He has learned their religion and their method of living. He has learned to talk in their language and present God to them in the form that they know him. As yet he has not been able to wrench from them their conception of God as a God of Justice, Law, and Right and present to them a loving Heavenly Father.

It was a hard thing for the McGregors to endure life in Hanroth Square in the beginning. Mrs. McGregor was a target for the criticism of the better people—especially the women—She was criticized for everything from her personal appearance to her friendliness, which the people of Hanroth chose to interpret as forwardness. She was criticised because she kept a negro in her home. And five years of criticism is more that she could bear. Gradually she let the mantle slip from her shoulders, and Mrs. McGregor is practically similar to the women of Hanroth when she is with them, but to Angus McGregor she maintains her own gay self. Plain, simple clothing has finally taken the place of her gay sport clothes she had so delighted in and now she is what the women of Hanroth Square call a "good woman."

There is one person in Hanroth however, who has always understood the McGregors. This person is Marcia Ravenelle who lives opposite the McGregors. In her youth Marcia Ravenelle had been very beautiful. Her parents were of the Scotch stock. Because Mrs. Ravenelle did not cling to some of the old ideas, it was predicted by some in the village that she would come to some bad end—to some, predictions had come true.

When Mrs. Ravenelle had been Marcia McDowell and seventeen she had gone to New York on a visit. Hamroth knew that she would come to no good in New York. It was too faraway from home. All the neighbors encouraged Marcia's mother with their evil predictions. In New York Marcia fell in love with Grano Ravenelle and married him. She took him home to Hanroth, but her family, being angry because she had not wedded at home, refused to acknowledge him. Marcia was heartbroken and they had returned to New York. There they had lived for several years, quite happily but one day Ravenelle's weak heart stopped beating and he was forced to take the rest he had so long neglected.

When Marcia returned, Hanroth nodded to each other knowingly. But Marcia paid no heed to the gossip of Hanroth and went calmly on with her own life. Finally, however, when the newness had become tarnished, Hanroth again received Marcia into their circle.

Knowing the situation of the minister and his wife, Marcia could easily sympathize with the two, and it was in this woman whom Hanroth had once chosen to shun, the McGregors found the most understanding friend they had ever known.

The next most important people in Hanroth are Darley Scott and his wife, caretakers of the church and their six children who must not be omitted.

Darby Scott and his wife are well-meaning, but ignorant villagers. As for Darby, he can neither read nor write his name, nor does he possess any ambition. Darby is a rather heavy, greasy, swarthy, dirty-looking man, somewhere past the Indian summer of life. It is plain that his woman has all the get-up and brains in the Scott household. It is Mary Scott who cleans the church, looks after the grounds, and sometimes even fires the furnance when Darby is having one of his spells. Mary Scott, I always have thought, should have been a man. She possesses the stride, voice, and commanding air which come natural to a man. Had she been a man she would have been even a leader among men. She possess just enough cheek to push ahead and force herself to the front. But Mary Scott has one failing and that failing is chiefly characteristic of a man—she loves her beer. It is not often that she has the taste for beer on Sunday, but there have been several times. One December Sunday Mary wanted beer. She drank it and slept through the Sabbath. The congregation almost froze to death that day. That night they disappeared. For several years nothing was heard of them. Then one day Mary came back to town. She was looking well. Hanroth opened it's eyes. Mary's first questions were for her husband, and upon hearing that he had never come back breathed a sigh of relief as if to say, "All's well!"

It happened that Mary had gone west to a certain gold rush and had struck it rich and had come back to Hanroth—they always did come back.

Mary had an admirer, Gregory Elliot, civil engineer from the north, was his name. He came to Hanroth to open the silver mines forty miles south of the village. With him came his brother, Albert. Both men were the talk of the town . So handsome, so gay so debonaire—they had money to burn!

At once they won the hearts of Hanroth Square. The Elliots were the only outsiders Hanroth had ever received as its equal.

Gregory Elliot and his brother Albert clattered down the coble stone highway in their red "tally-ho" accomponied by liveried footman. How pompous they looked in their tall silk hats and how benevolent they looked as they threw handfulls of pennies into the street to see the negroes and children scramble for them. Oh, they were riding high and handsome.

It takes money and backing to open old mines. The Elliots persuaded the village folk to invest their money in the mines and later to reap a fortune. The villagers trusted them implicity.

One night in early April, Gregory Elliot went to call on Mary and ask for her hand. A lazy spring rain was streaking down and had drenched the lilacs which tried to venture out so early. The air was warm and a sticky wind was blowing from the south.

Mary is a rather shrewd judge of human nature. She did not trust Elliot and suspected his designs on her fortune. Therefore she spurned his offer to become his wife.

Elliot, knowing the game was up with him, went home that night to his lonely country mansion, and dyanamited it into splinters with him and his brother inside.

I think I should let Hanroth sleep. Probably she cannot rest while someone is digging up skeletons of her past. Let Hanroth continue to dream in the sunshine and laze the time away until she is ready to sit up and take notice that time is slipping through her fingers and there's work to be done.

'33 in Richard J. Reynolds High School.

We then found the world's tennis champion, Mr. Fred Walters, who has attained the honor of taking Mr. Tilden's place on the tennis court, by his speed and accuracy in his play.

One of the most spectacular events in all the games, was the newly organized Tiddley-Winks contest, in which Miss Mary Nell Stonestreet competed against Jim Cofer, a naturalized citizen from Australia. Miss Stonestreet was quite adept, but Mr. Cofer, accustomed to the wilds of his native country, was proclaimed the world's best in this event.

We remember Miss Jeanette Kelly for her ability in announcing programs for musical recitals at high school, but by this time her talent had completely waned, and in her efforts to reduce she was seeking the championship in the Hopscotch Contest. Others competing against Miss Kelly were, Mr. Stacy Lee Burton, and Mr. Dewey Lanier.

Of major importance was the skill shown by Mr. Malcom Sapp in one of the most difficult events ever undertaken—that of jumping rope. Mr. Sapp's record of nine and one-half feet for ten consecutive times was not beaten and in the next trial, he is expected to go ten feet.

Unusual as it seems, the record pole vaulting award was taken by Miss Pauline Davis, whose training was acquired on the Basketball court back in Nineteen Thirty-two and Thirty-three.

This being the last principal event of the day, we congratulated all four former classmates, and everyone looks forward with anxiety and interest to the next Olympics, for each one of these notables is expected to surpass his own record set in 1946.

Eyes." There was one vote for "Operator Take My Number, Please," and one morbid student declared himself in favor of the "Funeral March".

The average senior is about five feet, six inches in height, weighing 125 pounds, and is approximately 17 years old. Some members of the class are only 15 years old, and others are "crossing the portal that divides youth from manhood," at the age of 20.

State College appears to be the favorite, and colleges located in North Carolina and Virginia appeared to be the most popular, although three military minded individuals intend to go to West Point. One graduate stated his intention of completing his education at Mildew.

We have not only lived up to former standards, we have set new and higher ones. We have promoted the honor system, we have led in school spirit.

Just four years—but valuable years. Years full of fun and work and experience. Soon we will again enter those awful portals of learning, but not in awe or fear, but in the realization that we have left our tasks well done. We pass on to our successors the responsibilities that have been ours, and give to their keeping, our ideals and our principles.

and once in a while a little mental exertion on American Problems—our senior year. We have found the meaning of American Problems, but as yet we are to see what sort of animal a senior privilege is. Being the oldest in the school, we have naturally assumed the role of leaders. Our members have excelled in every phase of high school life.

With John Johnson as our President we have made a lasting name for the January class of 1933. Jim Hutchins was elected the president of The Senior Hi-Y. John Shultz forgot his ability as an actor long enough to lead the cheering for the football season. He was elected by the largest majority of votes in the history of the school. Martha Stoney became the outstanding playwright and editor of the Black and Gold. Henry Wimbish was elected captain of the track team. Thomas Snow won the Carbis A. Walker Award for Bookkeeping and Accounting. Sarah Sheets and Esther Vernon became "Songbirds" of the school and of the south. Margaret Denny won a medal in a civic contest sponsored by local Civitans. Ralph Hardee and others excelled in football. Maxwell Snead became the captain of the 1933 basketball team, and scores of others of our number took the leading parts in scholastic activities.

FROM THE PRINT SHOP

This is the second Black and Gold senior number, or "Annual" to be printed in the Reynolds High School Print Shop.

The Print Shop wishes to give credit to those who have helped in any way and to those who have done outstanding work on the mechanical production of this publication.

The sewing on of the patches and the machine sewing on the covers has been done by the Home Economics Department under the direction of Miss Mather and Miss Forsythe. All proofreading on the publication was done by the journalistic staff.

Mr. R. B. Beckerdite handled the cylinder presswork. Robert Bradford made up practically all of the 160 pages in the book and also took care of the imposition of the forms. George Reece, David Hanes and Roy Minor set the bulk of the type. James Sparks and Donald Essex did a majority of the cylinder feeding. Mr. Perry's journalism classes assisted with the folding.

Members of all the printing classes helped with the various bindery operations and other work. Members of the trade classes in particular have been active in all departments of the work. Special recognition would not be undeserved by many not specifically mentioned here.

I take this opportunity to express my appreciation to all those whose faithful, earnest efforts and long hours of work have made the production of this work possible.
